Q: Question: My son and common-law recently split. They have settled everything, house and cash,(all official on Aug.06/08) but there is a problem regarding his truck. He has the truck loan in his name but the insurance is still in both. She has the truck and is the moment postponing returning it. Who's truck is it?

A: You write that "everything, house and cash,(all official on Aug.06/08)" But the truck should have been included in the declaration of assets and expenses when you made "everything official." I am assuming that you are referring to getting independent legal advice and have signed a Separation Agreement?

You will have to contact the lawyer who did your Separation Agreement and advise him/her that the truck was not included in the Agreement, if in fact it wasn't.
